

Référence / Reference

Authors of the paper (2007). Title of the paper. In, L. J. Alves Diniz, F. Carreiro da Costa, & M. Onofre (Eds.), AIESEP 2005 Lisbon World Congress Proceedings: Active lifestyles: The impact of education and sport. Cruz Quebrada: Faculdade de Motricidade Humana.

Contents

Biddle, J.H.S. – Physical activity and inactivity in young people: What are the key influences and what can we do about it?

Brandl-Bredenbeck, H.P. – Physical activity and risk behavior in young people.

Tinning, R. – Active lifestyles and the paradoxical impact of education & sport.

Matos, M.G., & Diniz, J. – Portuguese adolescents: Active lifestyles and health.

Laakso, L., et al – Leisure time physical activity of Finnish young people.

Alves, A., et al – Body image and physical activity in individuals with diagnosed schizophrenia.

Cloes, M., et al – Analysis of the support provided to student-athletes in Wallonia. The case of higher education.

García Montes, M.E., et al – Relationships between physical activity and self-perception in senior high school students.

Hynes-Hunter, J.M., & Avery, S. – Block scheduling in secondary physical education.

Montaruli, A., et al – Moderate physical activity does not modify the heart rate circadian synchronization.

Gerlach, E. – Sport-involvement and development during childhood. A longitudinal study on frame of reference effects on physical self-concept.

Nieminen, P., et al – A comparison of the attitudes of Finnish and Japanese physical education students toward educational approaches to teaching.

Almeida, K., & Neto, C. – Physical activity and children's independent mobility in different social contexts.

Oliveira, R., & Cabri, J. – Low back pain in young people - Cross-sectional study in Lisbon.

Coelho, L., & Oliveira, R. – Low back pain in adolescents – Identification of psychosocial risk factors. Epidemiological study in Great Lisbon area.

Zachopoulou, E., et al – An innovation in early childhood physical education: the early steps project.

Cloes, M., et al – Girl's non-participation in swimming lessons at secondary school level. Analysis of the pupils' point of view

Moreira, M.H., et al – Aerobic ability, body composition and physical activity in pubertal teenagers: the project active teenagers.

Malek, C. – Walking bus – the active way to school as a means to combat children's overweight.

Mesquita, I., et al – Teachers representations about students' misbehaviours in physical education related with subjects, class moments and their targets.

Palomäki, S., & Heikinaro-Johansson, P. – The influence of teacher education on preservice teachers' beliefs about teaching physical education.

Wellard, I., et al – 'A flame is ignited when I dance': physical activity and embodied reflexive practices in young ballet dancers.

Brown, D.H.K., & Leledaki, A. – Fitness, health, self defense, spirituality and therapy: situating eastern movement forms as body-self transforming practice in the west.

Simões, C., et al – Lifestyles in adolescence: substance use and violence.

Ommundsen, Y., & Kvalø, S.E. – Motivation and affect in physical education classes – A self-determination perspective.

McKeen, K., et al – Promoting physical activity through teaching games for understanding in undergraduate teacher education.

Wallian, N., et al – Constructing “active lifestyle” and “healthy practices”: ethical inquiry issues in French school physical education.

Veloso, S., & Matos, M.G. – Adolescent's physical activity: perspectives for active lifestyles of a school population in Oeiras.

Camacho Miñano, M.J., & Fernández García, E. – Body image and type of sport in Spanish adolescent girls.

Hernández-Álvarez, J.L., et al – The conceptual knowledge in PE and health: What do our students know? a research on Spanish school population.

Chang, C.W., *et al – Implementing a constructivist approach to basketball learning: the case of a 7th grade PE class in Taiwan.

Ivaskiene, V., *et al – Some aspects of physical fitness of kaunas high school girls.

Matos, R., & Godinho, M. – Influence of sports practice in the useful field of vision in a simulated driving test.

Ruiz Juan, F. – Relations between the physical activity and the personal school experience in senior high school students.