Position Announcements

* The Department of Kinesiology at the University of Georgia (USA) is pleased to announce a named senior-level, tenure-track research position at the rank Full Professor beginning August 2017. We seek an individual with outstanding accomplishments for research in the area of movement impairments in children/adolescents with neurodevelopmental disabilities. The successful candidate will provide leadership in the Department of Kinesiology and beyond through outstanding accomplishments and future capacity in research on motor development in children's disabilities. It is expected that the individual appointed will maintain an ambitious research and development agenda appropriate to his or her interests, including developing proposals for external funding, overseeing project development and implementation, disseminating research through scholarly writing and presentations, mentoring graduate students, and collaborating with faculty on research activities related to the mission of the Department of Kinesiology

(<https://coe.uga.edu/directory/departments/kinesiology>). The position provides the opportunity to integrate theory and practice in movement disabilities through the function of an established children's movement clinic. The Department of Kinesiology is based in the College of Education at The University of Georgia. The Department is closely affiliated with other departments that emphasize children's development and education. The Georgia Athletic Association Professor of Kinesiology will be expected to work collaboratively with other researchers, educators, and industry partners to advance research and theory related to children's movement disabilities. Questions may be addressed to the search committee chair, Karl M. Newell (kmn1@uga.edu). Applications received by December 1, 2016 will be assured full consideration.

* Edge Hill University (UK) is seeking a new Grade 8 Lecturer in Sports Coaching and Development post in the Department of Sport and Physical Activity. This post is currently being advertised on our University website (<https://jobs.edgehill.ac.uk/vacancy.aspx?ref=EHT1016-1016>) and will also shortly appear on jobs.ac.uk.

* The Department of Kinesiology, Health Promotion, & Recreation at the University of North Texas (USA) is seeking an Assistant Professor in the area of Sport Pedagogy and Motor Behavior. Minimum Qualifications are a earned doctorate in Kinesiology or closely related field; Demonstrated experience and research in Sport Pedagogy and Motor Behavior; Interest in pursuing external funding to complement and expand current doctoral program in Sport Pedagogy and Motor Behavior and a commitment to advising and mentoring undergraduate and graduate students. Preferred Qualifications: Candidates with teaching experience in higher education; Candidates with teaching experience with diverse student populations in P-12 school settings; Supervision of pre-service teachers in field experiences; Strong English and Spanish language communication capabilities; Ability to link across research areas in pedagogy, recreation and health promotion.

* The Physical Education Teacher Education (PETE) program at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse (USA) announces the availability of a tenure-track assistant professor PETE position in our Department of Exercise and Sport Science and School of Education. The position will start on August 28, 2017. Please see the following link for the announcement and information about how to apply: <https://employment.uwlax.edu/postings/6713>. More information about our comprehensive academic department and many undergraduate and graduate degree programs can be found at <http://www.uwlax.edu/exercise-sport-science/>. We are the second largest academic unit at the university, and receive excellent administrative support in all ways.

* The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (USA) (<http://illinois.edu/>) and the College of Applied Health Sciences (<http://ahs.illinois.edu>) invites applicants for a full-time Assistant Professor tenure-track position in Exercise Physiology. Successful candidates must have an earned doctorate in exercise physiology or a related field. Postdoctoral experience is preferred. Evidence demonstrating potential capacity to acquire research funding, effectively teach, and provide a leadership role in the department is expected. The committee strongly encourages applications and nominations of women and persons of underrepresented groups. Closing Date: Full consideration will be given to applications received by November 11, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled. More details are at: <http://jobs.illinois.edu>.

* The Journal of Sports Sciences has experienced unprecedented growth over recent years. The journal now publishes 24 issues per annum, and 1640 new articles have been submitted for publication consideration already this calendar year. Moreover, while the quantity of published papers has grown markedly, the impact factor (IF) of the journal has continued to rise, thanks to the efforts of its Editorial Board, Advisory Board and volunteer reviewers. The journal currently ranks 22/82 publications with an IF of 2.142. A challenge that has arisen with this growth is the significant increase in workload for the Editorial Board. Currently, the journal has 12 Section Editors, each with a different area of specialisation. The plan is to collapse these 12 Sections into 5 new Sections, each led by an Executive Editor and supported by at least 3 Associate Editors. The overall result will be an increase in the number of Editorial Board members from 12 to at least 20. The revised structure will also provide a convenient way to increase the number of Editorial Board members associated with each Section in future, thereby providing a structure that is flexible to deal with further increases in submission numbers. The 5 new Sections are: 1. Behavioural and Social Sciences (BSS) - a merger of psychology, motor behaviour and expert performance, as well as encouraging more submissions with a social sciences emphasis; 2. Biological Sciences (BS) - a merger of physiology, nutrition and biochemistry, kinanthropometry and body composition; 3. Sports Medicine and Biomechanics (SMB) - a merger of these two areas; 4. Physical Activity, Health and Exercise (PAHE) – a multi-disciplinary section; 5. Sports Performance (SP) – a multi-disciplinary area which involves a merger of match analysis, talent identification and coaching science. These Sections will be led by the following Executive Editors, all of whom are current Editorial Board members: Andy Lane (A.M.Lane2@wlv.ac.uk; BSS); Gareth Davison (gw.davison@ulster.ac.uk; BS); Eric Wallace (es.wallace@ulster.ac.uk; SMB); Colin Boreham (Colin.Boreham@ucd.ie; PAHE); and Grant Abt (G.Abt@hull.ac.uk; SP). The journal is now looking to appoint a number of new Associate Editors to work with these Executive Editors. The Associate Editors are expected to manage the review process for around 60-80 papers per annum, and to attend one Section meeting and one Editorial Board meeting per annum. A stipend will be paid to each Associate Editor in the form of editorial expenses. An expression of interest in regards to taking up the role of Associate Editor should be made directly to the relevant Executive Editor or to the Editor-in-Chief. Please include a short (maximum 2-page) statement highlighting why you are interested in taking on this role, and a Curriculum Vitae. We would be happy to consider expressions of interest from UK and non-UK based candidates. The deadline for submission is December 1st, 2016. The appointments will commence in January 2017 and will be for a three-year period in the first instance.

* The ICSSPE Bulletin No.71 is now online! It provides a Special Feature called Exercise and Science in Ancient Times, which contains a collection of scientific articles which will help to focus our attention towards other civilizations and to uncover the hidden history of science of sports and exercise. The special Feature was reviewed by Dr Suresh Harihar Deshpande of the National Association of Physical Education and Sports, India. The Current Issues section proposes an interesting article on Recent Research into Children's Physical Activity by Richard Bailey, ICSSPE, as well as our ICSSPE News, which will give a rough overview on some of ICSSPE's activities in 2016 and 2017. To read the Bulletin, please visit the ICSSPE Member's Area (www.icsspe.org) and enter the password (available on the AIESEP website: Membership Area).
